

Courtesy of Jim Zietz

Courtesy of Kevin Duffy

TREASURES OF LSU

Some are commonly seen and cherished, like Louisiana State University's stately live oaks and beloved Mike the Tiger. But many of LSU's greatest treasures are off the beaten path, their meaning obscured over time.

A number can be found on display in gallery exhibits. While others buried deep within restricted archives rarely see the light of day.

A few are even hidden in plain sight. But they all have stories to tell about their times, their origins and their value - intrinsic, scholarly or artistic.

Follow host Shauna Sanford on a journey through rich history in search of exquisite rarities, from literary and artistic masterpieces to stunning antiques. Meet compelling experts who take us behind the scenes and reveal little known insights and the stories behind some of LSU's most intriguing artifacts.

- David Floyd – Director, LSU Rural Life Museum
- Dr. Paul Hoffman - Historian, LSU Department of History
- Dan Lane – Research Associate, LSU Museum of Natural History
- Mark E. Martin – Photo Archivist, LSU Libraries
- Natalie Mault – Curator, LSU Museum of Art
- Dr. Van Remsen – Curator of Birds, LSU Museum of Natural Science
- Dr. Rebecca Saunders – Curator of Anthropology, LSU Museum of Natural Science
- Elaine Smyth – Head of Special Collections, LSU Libraries
- Pam Vinci – Curator, LSU Textile & Costume Museum

Produced and written by Liz Barnes (Washing Away: After the Storms), the program is hosted by LPB's Shauna Sanford (Louisiana: The State We're In). Videographer Keith Crews filmed and edited the program which was co-directed and filmed by LPB Senior Producer Al Godoy.

Based on the book "Treasures of LSU," edited by Dr. Laura F. Lindsay and published by LSU Press, this high definition, LPB production takes you on an exclusive expedition filled with remarkable treasures, sharp turns and even a few twists.

Join us on the hunt for the Treasures of LSU, premiering March 21st at 8:30 p.m. on LPB.

